42nd Annual Holiday Parade

This hometown parade is a true holiday tradition, and thousands line the street each year to kick off the holiday season in style! The parade starts at 6pm, but many come early to Rotary Plaza to sing carols and anxiously await Santa's arrival via fire truck. Once Santa arrives, one lucky local family is selected to help the Mayor flip the switch on before Star Pine, lighting the giant tree in all its glory. And this year, that family could be yours by entering the 1st Annual Coronado Tree Lighting Contest!

54th Annual North Park Toyland Parade & Festival

The historic neighborhood of North Park will warmly welcome friends and family to bundle-up and delight in San Diego's most joyful parade. Gliding down University Avenue between Utah and Iowa Streets, this cheerful Parade will feel like a Winter Wonderland, as melodious marching bands, upbeat dance groups, cool vintage cars, beauty queens, city officials and more, warm your spirits. Santa Claus will be riding atop his merry red fire engine and bells will be ringing as loved ones snuggle up in the bright, frosty air.

Holiday Bowl

College football fans know it just wouldn't be the Christmas season without the Holiday Bowl, the annual Pac-12/ Big Ten showdown, that lights up the field of SDCCU Stadium in San Diego every December - and while we don't know much about the 2017 game just yet, this website will automatically update to help you stay one step ahead of the competition for the best tickets around! Nothing beats the excitement of postseason college football, especially when it's played under the bright blue skies of Southern California. So check this site regularly to learn more about the great postseason football coming to "America's Finest City" this December, and score your Holiday Bowl 2017 Tickets before they're all gone.
